

GreenNOW Vision

For more than two decades DanceNOW has followed a green path. Our focus has been on resourcefulness and creativity, discovering the new, renewing the old and reclaiming dance to its vital role to enrich and inspire.

For 16 years, DanceNOW has presented generations of artists, from young innovators to maturing artists that give historical significance to the art, side by side in our programming to reveal the full spectrum of dance makers in New York City. Offering accessible, must go-to 'destination events' to excite and energize new audiences for dance, we seek unconventional means to challenge, sustain and move the careers of today's dance innovators forward.

Without a performance venue of our own to maintain and power, and an office that exists only online, we have learned to how do 'more for less' and to embrace limitation as a powerful source for creativity. Today, more than ever, this policy is key to our sustainability as well as our artistic vision.

In seeking creative and sustainable ways to bring dance and community together, we have developed vital partnerships with other arts organizations, sharing resources to create distinctive events that enhance a shared mission to connect audiences to today's dance makers and build ongoing relationships with urban innovators that advance the artists as well as the art form.
